A Framework for the Study of Constructed (Semi)Commons (or Pooling Arrangements)

Brett Frischmann (co-authored with Mike Madison and Joe Miller)

This paper introduces a research project that will examine intellectual property rights systems and intellectual property pools as socially constructed environments. At this stage, we present the theoretical framework for our study and a roadmap for examining particular types of structured pooling arrangements. We anticipate conducting numerous case studies across a variety of intellectual disciplines.